TOP 10 | DIGITAL NOMAD HOTSPOTS

// BERLIN, GERMANY

1

Berlin has evolved into one of Europe's hottest start-up hubs. It's a young, vibrant city full of creative, unconventional people.

During the summer months, it hooks up lots of digital nomads from all over the world. There's an abundance of workspaces and cafés to work from and the scene is ever growing. If you fancy, you can go out, network and meet interesting people every single day. Getting on with English is easy and costs for food and living are still cheap for EU standards. Plus, Berliners LOVE to have fun – the city's vibe of freedom is incomparable. Like-minded people get together in street cafes, coworking spaces or in waterside bars to trade their ideas. In summer, it's a great base, as you can hop aboard a plane at any time to quickly and affordably get to another European metropolis or the beach.

In short, Berlin rocks!

Lisbon has evolved into one of the best European capitals for digital nomads and creative workers. With fast and reliable internet everywhere, the coworking scene is constantly growing. Unique workspaces and cafés help you to instantly feel productive, stay inspired and connect with a young, international crowd of entrepreneurs.

For a Western capital, living costs are still affordable and you can find some good deals on housing. Lisbon is a melting pot of the traditional and the cosmopolitan, stimulating your explorer gene with magical sights, hidden paths, intriguing colors and stunning sunset views over the city and towards the sea. The surfer beaches are just a short train, ferry or cycle ride away.

Lisbon is home to incredibly friendly locals and has lots of really good restaurants, cozy cafés and bars, as well as a buzzing nightlife scene.

Eastern Europe is reinventing itself. Meaning it's evolving, constantly changing – and therefore on a real uprise when it comes to attracting young creatives.

Hardly any city is shouting out more to digital nomads than Sofia. If you're looking to get some work done in an upcoming city, then this is your place to be. Rent prices are cheap, eating out is really affordable – and the internet is blazing fast. betahaus is the forerunner of an amazing coworking culture, making sure you're connected to the community and local tech scene.

Besides that, the city is beautiful, safe and people are kind and helpful – Southern Europe paired with Balkan vibes. You'll also find the highest ski area just around the corner and Sofia has a great party culture, too.

// CHIANG MAI, THAILAND

Chiang Mai draws digital nomads in like flies. It simply boasts the ultimate mix of good weather, the most digital nomads anywhere on earth, super cheap costs of living, good wifi and friendly people. Especially in the winter time, almost the entire community meets here to spend some months out of the cold.

Many cafes are hardly distinguishable from co-working spaces. When you're not too busy working, there's lots to do and discover in Thailand's beautiful nature. Thailand is also great for starters, because it's well developed for tourism; it's easy to get around and you immediately feel welcomed thanks to the friendliness and helpfulness of the Thai's.

// SOUTHERN THAI ISLANDS

What makes digital nomad life better than working from a tropical island? We highly recommend you to put these two on your list: Koh Lanta (West coast) and Koh Phangan (East coast) both welcome you with some of the most amazing coworking spaces we've been to – either set in a lush, tropical garden a few minutes from the sea, or right at the beach.

Both communities stand out with a unique family vibe, fast internet, great healthy food and lots of opportunities to create meaningful connections with other coworkers. Costs depend strongly on the season, but are generally low.

Koh Lanta boasts some of the best diving spots in Asia, long white beaches and a relaxed and super friendly local community, while Koh Phangan has a unique hippie feel, a great expat scene and a world-famous nightlife. Both of course have stunning beaches and beautiful nature that is still very much intact. You can take yoga and meditation courses, eat healthy food and fresh fruit the whole day or keep fit with beach runs, cross fit and other sports. Besides, there are great chances to engage in eco-minded and social initiatives.

// HO CHI MINH CITY (SAIGON), VIETNAM

Even though Vietnam is experiencing a tourist boom, but still remains a stronghold for digital nomads.

Great weather, wide-spread knowledge of the English language, affordable prices and lots of other entrepreneurs on-site make Ho Chi Minh City an attractive location. The internet is blazing fast and there are great networking opportunities with other nomads – especially when it's burning season in Chiang Mai, the scene is booming.

Besides, the city is the temporary home to many members of the Dynamite Circle, an English speaking community for online entrepreneurs who host regular meetups in the city.

// SAN DIEGO, USA

San Diego is our hottest tip if you want to escape the roaring prices of San Francisco, but still want to soak in some of California's famous entrepreneurial vibe and creative energy.

Why? It is much more affordable, has sunny weather year round and plenty of lifestyle entrepreneurs and digital nomads to connect to. With 25–30° in summer and 18–25° in winter, the weather is actually rated best in the USA! San Diego is spoiling you with the best surf spots in the country, suitable for all levels. Combined with amazing beaches, hip bars and coffee shops and San Francisco, L.A. and even Mexiko just a stones throw away, you surely have the perfect getaways from work mapped out – and a visit to Silicon Valley is as easy as it gets.
